2. Life Insurance

Typical benefits may include death benefit and, depending on product, maturity, survival, surrender and rider benefits. The approved product determines minimum/maximum entry age, maturity age, policy term, premium-paying term, sum assured and premium. IRDAI's life-insurance Customer Information Sheet framework includes instalment premium, payment mode, sum assured, premium-payment term, policy term and coverage/benefit information. ■cite■turn0search23■

3. Health Insurance

Potential benefits may include eligible hospitalisation, day-care, pre/post-hospitalisation, ambulance and other specified expenses. Customers must check waiting periods, pre-existing disease rules, exclusions, co-payment, deductibles, sub-limits and cashless-provider lists. IRDAI advises customers to disclose pre-existing health problems and review these restrictions. ■cite■turn0search0■

4. Health Insurance Age Limit

IRDAI states that health insurance policies shall ordinarily provide entry age at least up to 65 years, while some products offer coverage beyond 65. Once an eligible health policy is issued and renewed without a break, renewal generally cannot be denied solely on age, subject to applicable rules and product terms. ■cite■turn0search3■

5. Motor Insurance

Coverage may include third-party liability and, where selected, own-damage/comprehensive protection. Premium depends on vehicle details, location, usage, insured value, claims history and applicable rating factors. Final coverage and deductibles are stated in the policy.

6. Travel Insurance

Potential benefits include specified emergency medical expenses, trip cancellation/interruption, baggage-related losses and assistance, subject to destination, trip duration, limits and exclusions.

7. Home Insurance

Potential coverage includes specified building, contents and selected property risks. Coverage and premium depend on property details, insured values, location and selected perils.

8. Business Insurance

Potential coverage includes specified property, liability, business interruption and specialised risks. Premium and limits depend on the business and selected risks.

9. Personal Accident, Cyber, Pet & Crop

Personal accident may cover specified accidental death/disability. Cyber may cover specified cyber incidents. Pet may cover specified veterinary/accident risks. Crop products depend on the applicable crop, location, scheme and insurer.

10. Medical and Risk Information

Website quotation fields may include diabetes, hypertension, cardiovascular conditions, respiratory conditions, kidney/liver conditions, previous treatment and tobacco use. These are not automatic premium loadings; underwriting is determined by the applicable insurer.

11. Claims

Customers should notify the applicable insurer and follow the claim procedure in the policy. Supporting documents may be required. Claim acceptance and settlement are governed by the applicable policy terms.

12. Online Payment

Payments should be processed through an authorised gateway connected to the company's secure backend. Customers should verify policy number and amount before payment. Payment should not be treated as proof of coverage until the applicable records confirm the transaction.

13. Customer Assistance

Chat assistance provides general guidance and website navigation. It is not a binding underwriting decision, medical opinion, claim decision or guarantee of coverage.

14. Final Disclaimer

This document is a website information template, not an insurance contract. Actual premium amounts, age limits, coverage limits, exclusions, waiting periods, deductibles, product names and insurer details must be inserted only from current approved documents and reviewed by the relevant insurer/authorised intermediary and legal or compliance professional before publication.
